FOUR BURNED TO DEATH NEAR STEUBENVILLE

Fire Sweeps Victims'
Home at Goulds
Station.

ONE MAN ESCAPES

Mill Worker, Wife,
Baby and Invalid
Die.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Mar. 2.—Four persons were burned to death early today at Goulds Station, southwest of here, when fire destroyed a home.

Attempts to Rescue Woman.

Charles Crawford, a mill worker in the Carnegie Steel company plant at Mingo Junction, 24; his wife, 22; a baby boy, aged nine months, and Mrs. William Prim, 43, mother of Mrs. Crawford, were the victims.

The flames, which had already gained great headway, awakened William Prim, Steubenville barber, whose home it was. He attempted to drag his wife, an invalid, to a window, but he was unable to hold on to Mrs. Prim, so badly burned was her flesh.

Man, Seriously Burned, Jumps.

Almost overcome by smoke, Prim yelled to his son-in-law, Crawford, instructing him to bring the others to the window and toss them out to him. Prim then jumped from a second-story window to the ground. No one ever appeared at that window. Crawford was evidently overcome by smoke before he could follow his father-in-law's advice.

When neighbors arrived at the scene, they found Prim frantically rushing around, partially out of his mind. He had been seriously burned. He was taken to a hospital, attacks of which said he might die.

Fliers Naturally Fly.
Keen, Nervous, Sensitive.
Brains, Feet, Hands.
60 and 62 Billions.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CYRUS H. K. CURTIS with proper pride, says his Saturday Evening Post this week prints 3,050,000 copies.

That is a trifle more than one-half the weekly circulation of W. R. Hearst's American Weekly, which sells at ten cents a copy as against five cents for Mr. Curtis' paper. Mr. Curtis, therefore can reasonably hope to go much farther.

MISS ANNE MORROW was intended to be the wife of a flier. Having turned an airplane somersault with Col. Lindbergh on Wednesday, she went with him on three short flying trips yesterday. Her theory is that since she means to fly she may as well fly.

Lindbergh steered his plane with one hand, the other being injured. Good samples of the modern young American.

MR. HOOVER'S cabinet takes shape, and newspapers begin printing collections of cabinet photographs.

Among the faces quite sure to remain in the picture you might say, off hand, that Andrew W. Mellon's is the keenest. Henry L. Stimson's the most serious and William D. Mitchell's the most sensitive.

WILL ROGERS, funny though serious, says, Mr. Hoover chose Mitchell because he is a Democrat. When he tries to enforce prohibition and fails, it will be a Democratic failure and won't hurt the party.

The fact is that Mr. Hoover is selecting Americans that know how to work regardless of party.

His choice for the department of commerce, as yet unknown, must be difficult. It is not easy to replace Herbert Hoover.

THE house struck out of the deficiency bill the $24,000,000 extra money to enforce prohibition. The senate puts the $24,000,000 back into the bill. Senators are more afraid of the prohibition anger than representatives because it is easier to concentrate vengeance on senators, fewer in number.

Mr. Rogers suggestion that the $24,000,000 be used "on prohibition enforcement in just one wing of the capitol" is not a bad suggestion.

LEON TROTZKY says Stalin, who exiled him, plays a "zig-zag policy," inventing a new theory for each consistent act.

What Trotzky calls "zig-zag" may be intelligent opportunism, and any (Continued on Page Six, Col. 7.)

HOOVER AIDE

Being secretary to the president is a busy job. George Ackerson, above, will be right hand man for Mr. Hoover when he goes into the White House.

TEACHER DIES AFTER TEETH ARE EXTRACTED

RUN NO BOATS AS RIVER FALLS

No steamboats were running on the Ohio river today between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati because of the wickets being up at Dams 9, 11, 13 and 18. The stage is too low to permit boats to pass over the wickets.

Lock tenders at Dam No. 8 reported 21.8 feet at noon, with the water falling two tenths of a foot an hour.

RIVER PARNA FLOODS HOMES

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 2.—Hundreds of persons were homeless in the province of Santa Fe today owing to the flooded condition of the River Parna.

A large section of the province is completely inundated. Three towns were faced with complete obliteration.

OHIOAN BADLY HURT IN CAVE-IN

ZANESVILLE, O., March 2.—Jacob McCord, 50, laborer, New Lexington, was in a hospital here today suffering from possible internal injuries. He was rushed here from New Lexington yesterday after he had been buried in a cave-in under a street by several tons of earth.

TWO TRAINMEN DIE AS COAL CARS RUN WILD

Engineer and Brakeman
Are Killed at St.
Clair, Pa.

ONE MAN HURT

Victims are Buried Beneath Wreckage on Reading Road.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., March 2.—Two trainmen were killed and another seriously injured today when a string of loaded coal cars ran wild in the Reading railroad yards at St. Clair, near here, striking a locomotive and piling up 35 cars.

The dead are Guy Frantz, of St. Clair, engineer, and Joseph Hartnett, of Schuylkill Haven, a brakeman. John Howells, of Port Carbon, also a brakeman, was seriously injured. The trainmen were buried beneath the wreckage.

The loaded coal cars were standing in the yards when brake couplings apparently slipped, allowing the string to gain such momentum that when they struck the locomotive, the trainmen had no warning of impending death. Thousands of tons of coal and steel buried the men who were extricated by fellow workers.

G. F. HOWARD, 62, NEWELL, DIES

George F. Howard, 62, vice president of the Metch Refractories company, Newell, died in the City hospital yesterday, following week's illness of pneumonia.

McGee it is said, had been in the room for about half an hour when he was found by members of his family. He was resuscitated by police and Dr. J. W. Christler.

PUTS $300,000 VALUE ON LOVE

COLUMBUS, O., March 2.—Three hundred thousand dollars is the valuation which Floyd B. Day, of Columbus, placed on the love of his wife.

Suit, for damages to that amount, had today been filed by the local man against Mrs. Zesta Griess, his mother-in-law, who, Day avers, caused his wife to leave him. The mother-in-law is also blamed for the mother taking their child away from the father, five days after she deserted him.

THREE MEN SLATED FOR PLACES IN CABINET

James W. Good, western campaign manager for Mr. Hoover, is expected to fill the post of Secretary of War since Colonel William J. Donovan has turned down the offer of the portfolio.

Arthur M. Hyde, former governor of Missouri, will be the secretary of agriculture in Herbert Hoover's cabinet. In the pre-convention maneuvers for the Republican nomination for president last summer, former Governor Hyde was originally a supporter of Frank O. Lowden of Illinois.

Although he is a Democrat, William D. Mitchell of Minnesota, present Solicitor-General of the United States, is President-elect Hoover's choice for the important post of attorney general.

HYDE IS FIRST

Former Governor of Missouri in Agricultural Place.

By George R. Holmes.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The cabinet of President-elect Hoover was completed today with the selection of Robert Patterson Lamont of Chicago to be secretary of commerce.

The appointment of the Chicagoan was the second of the "surprises" forecast in the completion of the Hoover cabinet, the other being the designation of Ex-governor Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri, to be secretary of agriculture. The Lamont appointment was even more of a surprise than the Hyde appointment, however, for his name has never been mentioned in connection with a cabinet post.

FORECAST RAIN FOR INAUGURAL

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Vast gobs of gloom permeated the capital today when the U. S. weather bureau not only refused to predict fair weather for Monday's inaugural, but even forecast rain for Monday morning.

The government prophet was skittish about saying whether there would be rain Monday afternoon, but unofficially it was stated that it would be "a close shave" for the great Hoover inaugural parade to get by without a wetting.

Complete Cabinet.

With this appointment, the complete Hoover cabinet now stands as follows:

Secretary of state—Henry L. Stimson of New York.

Secretary of the treasury—Andrew W. Mellon of Pennsylvania.

Attorney general—William D. Mitchell of Minnesota.

Secretary of war—James W. Good of Iowa.

Traffic Dangers in School Zones

Need of some plan to safeguard children from traffic perils in school zones in East Liverpool is again emphasized by the fatal accident in East End yesterday in which a seven-year-old boy was the victim. The lad was killed when he ran in front of a motor truck.

Police investigation exonerated the driver of blame in the child's death. The boy, following a companion, ran in front of the automobile vehicle, and notwithstanding the fact that the driver swerved the truck in an effort to avoid the accident the lad was knocked down and his skull fractured.

The fatality occurred near the Garfield school, Pennsylvania avenue, where the child was a pupil. Motorists are cognizant of the perils of traffic there because of the grade of the street and the fact that children, despite warnings given by parents and teachers, take many risks. This is also true in other school zones.

Seemingly some safety plan should be adopted in school zones. It is realized that the police department does not have enough men to permit the assignment of patrolmen three hours a day—morning, noon and night—at these points. Perhaps the Columbiana County Motor club and Boy Scout organization should advise a co-operative plan of dealing with the problem. Boy Scouts have proved their worth as traffic officers. Why not select troop members to perform this task near the schools they attend?

After Forty, What?

When the American Federation of Labor meets at Washington in May one of the topics for discussion will be the discrimination shown by employers in discharging men when they reach the age of 40 or 45 years.

At the meeting of the executive council just held at Miami, Fla., this matter was discussed and the decision made that it should receive the attention of the whole body.

William Green, president of the federation, is quoted as saying that to "draw the dead line for employment at an age when most men are at their prime is the height of folly." He is not among those who think a man is ready for the shelf at 40. He explained the tendency as "a mere state of mind of the employer."

The growing practice of side-tracking a man at 40 he explains as being in part due to the prevailing workmen's compensation laws which require group and casualty insurance. By employing young men, he says, the premium rate is less and the cost of insurance, therefore, lower. If this be true, it would seem that the compensation laws are boomerangs come back to plague their originators.

Mr. Green also took a fling at the inconsistency shown by large employers in laying off American workmen or refusing to hire them and at the same time bringing in young workers from other countries for their plants and mines. This practice, he insists, will eventually bring forth legislation to cut immigration quotas still lower.

It would seem that both industry and labor might with profit get together on their common problems. Their ultimate interest are mutual.

Of the whole population the laborers over 40 years of age and their dependents form a very considerable proportion. Industry may well remember that it cannot sell its product to this impoverished group. It may remember, too, that humanitarian demands will sooner or later bring about an old-age pension when the situation becomes acute and that industry will stand a large share of its cost. Better by far keep a man productive than support him with pensions.

Labor, on the other hand, must learn that its older men must be worthy of their hire, that they must continue to produce what the younger one produces. Older men must be content to step into less onerous positions when the pace gets too stiff.

Expensive Hog Treatment

In response to the plea of a woman resident of Beloit, Wisconsin, the circuit court of Chicago has granted a temporary injunction restraining a woman psychologist of the latter city from collecting notes amounting to $1,500 given the psychologist by the complainant for "absent thought treatment" to effect the cure of a drove of the plaintiff's hogs suffering from the cholera.

She told the court that she had taken the "absent thought treatment" with beneficial effect when suffering from a nervous breakdown. The treatment seemed to prove equally efficacious when a pet dog owned by her became ill, and later a team of horses fretting from harness sores showed improvement during the course of the long-distance treatment.

"But while the 'absent thought treatment,' or something or other, worked to her satisfaction in her own case and the cases of her dog and her horses, the plaintiff asserted that it manifestly didn't 'take' in the cases of her sorely afflicted hogs, which died."

She then explained to the court that, as she had paid the Chicago "absent thought treatment" artist $2,500 in cash, she did not feel that she should be compelled to pay the additional $1,500 represented by the notes, the payment of which was subsequently held up temporarily by the order of the court.

And this is the twentieth century!

Sea or Air Cruisers

Cruisers are a live topic just now. So is "Freedom of the Seas." There is natural interest in a book of this title, just published, written by a British authority named Lieut. Commander J. M. Kenworthy, M. P. His views may interest Americans particularly.

The cruiser, he declares, is "a tactical weapon that is fast losing, or has lost, its military importance."

Battleships, the author observes, have become "costly white elephants." This is a fact which many Americans have accepted. There is now less regret for the battleships scrapped by the Washington disarmament treaty.

It was airships and submarines that made battleships obsolete. The same thing, Commander Kenworthy believes, is happening to cruisers.

The next war, he is sure, will be won by air bombardment or air blockade. "In such warfare, sea power and surface ships would scarcely count at all," he says.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 2.—Now that the United States shipping board is turning over some of its most important vessels to private operators and also is encouraging construction of new ships for the American merchant marine, the question of ocean freight rates again arises. Although the United States government and the several states have gone a long way in the matter of regulating railroad passenger and freight rates, telephone and telegraph rates, express rates, and even the rates of bus lines where they operate interstate, there never has been any very effective regulation of rates at sea. The shipping act, which in 1916 was passed creating the shipping board, provided that that body should have practically the same measure of control over the rates charged by vessels operating in and out of American ports that the interstate commerce commission exerts over our railroads. But the war came and the board became much more interested in emergency construction of vessels to win the war. Further, bottoms were at such a premium and shippers willing to pay almost any price to get goods overseas that any idea of controlling rates seemed idle.

With the war a decade behind us and with the shipping board getting out of the operating end of the business, it seems quite possible that the body may go more fully into the matter and set up a court which will inquire into the reasonableness of ocean freights.

How successful such a measure will be is a matter for conjecture. There is much difference of opinion. So far as the big lines are concerned, it is generally thought that definite rate control can be inaugurated but the ocean tramp is another matter. A railroad is readily susceptible of regulation because it owns tangible, static property. Its tracks must lie on the ground and pass through fields and cities. It must have stations. It is bound to its own definite route. But the ocean tramp is a wanderer over the seven seas. One ocean makes as good a track as another. It is controlled only by the exigencies of cargo.

In early days tramp steamers set out with a cargo. The ship captain oftentimes was owner or part owner of the cargo. As he passed from port to port he traded and, at the end of a year, might return to his hailing port with a wholly different cargo. Because of that practice ship captains were called merchant adventurers and when they left home their papers did not show a definite destination. They read merely that the ship had "cleared for strange ports."

With the advent of the ocean cable, however, this changed. Ship masters became merely the operators of their craft and seldom had any interest in the goods they carried. On receipt of word that there was a cargo to be carried from Singapore or Shanghai they hastened to get it, bargaining over the rate to be charged. They sought to get a cargo to carry both ways so that there would be no unprofitable mileage covered. In order to do this, they underbid each other ruthlessly. They could afford to take a cargo out to Singapore at less than cost if they knew that the return cargo would be profitable enough to make up for both trips.

It is obvious that in such a situation rates are bound to fluctuate widely. This same situation obtains to this day and at any port one may see tramp steamers loading or unloading cargo which have come or are bound to very strange ports which, perhaps they may never visit again.

Now for their own protection the big lines do maintain a measure of control but in order to safeguard themselves from cutthroat competition rather than out of concern for the shipping public. They have what are known as conferences. These are groups of lines operating in much the same trade. For example, the North Atlantic United Kingdom Freight conference embraces the lines operating out of United States ports— from Portland, Me., to Hampton Roads, Va.—to Great Britain. This is the largest conference and maintains an office. There are nearly fifty conferences representing the shipping in other parts of the world. Some are not of large membership and have no regular offices nor times of meeting.

The larger, better organized conferences put their agreements as to the general level of rates which they will maintain in writing but the smaller ones merely reach an oral agreement. Also the methods used to enforce the agreements upon all members of a conference differ. There are money penalties in some cases assessed against a line cutting a rate in competition with some other member. Other conferences merely rely on the moral obligation resting upon each member to protect the interests of all.

This is the situation which the shipping board faces in any effort to regulate ocean freights. Another point not to be overlooked is that so many of the lines in these conferences and also many of the tramps are registered under foreign flags and that the question of jurisdiction on an American board over their rates might be a close one.

Questions And Answers

By Frederic J. Haskin.

Many readers send in questions signed only with initials, asking that the answers appear in the newspaper. The space is limited and would not accommodate a fraction of such requests. The answers published are ones that may interest many readers, rather than the one who asks the question only. All questions should be accompanied by the writer's name and address and two cents in coin or stamps for reply. Send your question to the East Liverpool Review Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q. What are the colors and markings of the test plane, Question Mark? J. H. A. D.

A. The colors of the Question Mark are as follows: Tail and wings, yellow; body drab; rudder, red and white. The markings are as follows: On one side is printed U. S. Army Atlantic, C-2A, also an insignia of the Capitol. On the opposite side is the name, Question Mark.

Q. Can the president appoint anyone he chooses to his cabinet? W. W.

A. The president of the United States appoints his cabinet members, but these appointments must be confirmed by the senate.

Q. How is Blau gas made? What is its chief recommendation? T. A.

A. Blau gas was invented by a German chemist by that name. Quite a number of oils may be used for the manufacturing of this kind of gas. The gas is obtained by spraying gas oil into highly heated retorts. The main advantage of this gas in carrying it is the fact that it simplifies the matter of compensating for the loss of weight.

Q. What cities in the United States lead in steel production? S. K. K.

A. Based on value of products for establishments within city limits, in 1927, Gary, Indiana, was first; Chicago, Ill., second; Cleveland, Ohio, third; Pittsburgh, Pa., fourth; and Youngstown, Ohio, fifth, in steel production.

Ritzzy Rosalie

Aunt Ethelinda is telling Rosalie all about the gaiters and leggings they wore when she was young. And how buttoning really meant something in those days. She is inclined to sniff at Rosalie's gaiter stockings with their rows of buttons down the front which are merely decorative and forget how long it took to button the heavy things they wore then. Rosalie's fine wool jersey gaiter stockings are just as warm as can be and not a bit heavy looking.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The sub-tiest of Manhattan self-exploiters, it strikes me, are the ambitious batonners who lead jazz orchestras. No one ever knew an orchestra leader, outside of symphony conductors, in the old days. Today they are nationwide celebrities.

Not one is exactly a great musician, but they do not permit a forgetful public to forget them. The most successful have personality with a big plus and are so highly commercialized they operate a number of bands, maintaining elaborate offices with well paid promoters.

There is, for instance, nothing of the long haired, wistful-eyed and soulful manner about Paul Whiteman. He is more the rather corpulent good fellow, but when he mounts the rostrum there is something incredibly eloquent about his broad back and stamping foot. Paul is an actor.

Ben Bernie, flourishing his fiddle like a fan, is not so much the symphonic marvel as the suave and polished wise cracker. He has an engaging way of taking his audience into his confidence and holding himself up to ridicule. Then he confounds them with some euphonic heaviness.

Vincent Lopez is a model of tailored elegance with lustrous black hair, long eye lashes and a boyishly shy manner. He conducts quietly, with only a jiggly movement of his right arm. He has a trick of apparently losing himself in a dreamy manner. And do the ladies love it? His mash mail is the answer, my dears!

Art Hickman conducts from his battery of drums—sitting down—and looks out over dancers to bestow a friendly smile on an acquaintance. He is the dean of the guild. Eddie Peabody interpolates baton-wielding by twanging a banjo. Paul Ash features a mop of wild red hair.

There are a dozen others with pronounced subtleties that score. With their various activities, including recording, they are paid astounding sums, far more than our president. And despite talk jazz is declining, they are now, as the song has it, on the crest of the wave.

A little coffee pot place on 7th avenue heralds this indigestible pleas-antry: "Heaviest sinkers in town—10 cents a sink."

And in a half-dressing parlor those who desire to see the head man are greeted with a sign: "Consultation by appointment only."

There is a figure in the black and tan haunts of Harlem known as Choo-Choo with orange frizzed hair and a light septa complexion. Even to regulars she is a mystery. She speaks with a Parisian accent, is the constant companion of an extremely black sheik who wears a checkered suit and red tie. They visit the Black Belt faubourg in a limousine and have nothing to do with hot polli. And if she is featured in one of those colored revues next week, it makes a sucker of me again, as usual.

Broadway, too, has seasonal figures who come, create an air of mystery among night owls, and disappear like a magician's evanishment. A few weeks ago there was a gentleman who resembled an evil deprived Marquis from pages of an Oppenheim, with spade-shaped beard and red ribbon across his shirt front. He looked like one of those international intrigues that send Scotland Yard off the deep end. He escorted an aged and slightly limping dowager, known as "The Comtesse," bedecked with diamonds and supported by a shepherd's crook like Lillian Russell used to carry in the Weberfield extravaganza. After a few nights of wild spending, including $100 bill tips they vanished.

A New York authress tells in an interview how she lost all admiration for her husband because he showed up so badly in company. He had in public none of the charming qualities of polite attentiveness she saw in other men toward their wives. The lady may some day learn all married couples are pretty much alike when you shut the door on them.

Most of the public chair-fixing husbands I know have a spell in private when their wives buy a new hat.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

Proper feeding is essential to good health. The term "proper feeding" includes several factors. First, of course, is proper food. But after you have a supply of good food, it must be well prepared and taken in correct amounts.

If foods, animal or vegetable, or both, are placed in a furnace and burned, ashes will be left, just as ashes are left after burning wood or coal. The scientist uses this word in the singular, referring always to the indestructible remnant as the "ash."

Sometimes the ash is given another name, the "salts" of the food. As a matter of fact, the mineral elements in foods are usually found in combinations and not singly. The salts of fruits and vegetables are just as necessary to the welfare of the body as are the heat-producing and energy-producing foods.

The minerals most commonly found in the ash of vegetables and animal foods are phosphorus and potash. Not all foods carry these and other minerals in the same proportion.

See the importance of this statement: You cannot get your supply of all the required minerals without eating a variety of food. This particular element the infant demands can be had from milk. But in adult life you must have the salts that other foods supply in larger and more appropriate quantities than milk does.

In the ash of the human body are found 15 or 16 different mineral substances. This means that a well-nourished body must have an unfailing supply of 15 or 16 minerals.

How do we get these salts? What are their sources?

It may be interesting to go a bit into detail in this discussion. For instance, what could you hope to have in the way of hair if you could not get sulphur? This mineral is an essential ingredient of hair and the hair could not grow or thrive without it.

Sulphur is found in combination with certain protein foods. It is in the gluten of wheat. Likewise, it is one of the ingredients of peas. Of course there are other sources, but these are examples.

Potash is essential to overcome acidity. Meat and potatoes, wheat and peas, contain it.

Soda and chlorine are found in animal flesh. Likewise the ordinary table salt supplies them. The vegetables have small amounts.

The green vegetables, particularly the leafy vegetables, carry iron. Spinach, oatmeal and potatoes contain iron. This is a mineral the blood must have if health is to be maintained.

Fortunately, some of the common foods have iron. Apples, beef and the yolks of eggs carry iron.

Iodine is in the carrots. Lime is in the milk, cereals, eggs and vegetables.

The fruits and all the vegetables possess valuable mineral salts. You cannot get on without these. Health depends on taking some of every salt.

Other Editors Say

Mr. Trotsky Under Guard.

The unusual spectacle of a powerful minority leader exiled under strict guard in Constantinople is a striking commentary on the methods of absolutism in government. Finding that Trotsky's support was so strong as to require that he be better treated than by exile in a lonely Siberian village, the Stalin government has sent their most menacing opponent to a more pleasant climate under rigid guard of soviet officials. Presumably it would not be safe—for the Stalin regime—if he were sent into exile in the usual fashion, free to go where he chose, or where he could go.

And thus do absolute governments work their will, by stifling opposition before it can muster its forces into an organized movement which might threaten the party in power.

In other words, dictatorship, whether by an alleged super-man or by a tyrannical group of "proletarians," works out not only to defeat, the will of masses of people, but also to fan the fires of dissension and unrest among the majority of citizens. Tolerance by the ruling group of opposing elements in the state is the surest guarantee of sane and lasting governance.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy.

Don't Sympathize With Shirkers. Most parents are too sympathetic when their boys and girls come home from college and tell of the hard lessons assigned them.

Instructors have general programmes that they follow.

These are established to provide work for the average brain.

They are not for the exceptionally bright student.

Therefore, the boy or girl who complains about too much to do in certain classes acknowledges that he or she does not want to work hard enough.

To be sure, in some cases there are branches which are difficult for the ordinary student to master.

But, taking a fair curriculum as made up in each course, the general average is easy of mastery, and extra work is one subject and less to be done where the lines are easy make up the day in and day out course.

Young people who go to college should expect to work hard.

Too many think they know things that they do not know well enough.

To have heard a thing many times before does not signify that the student could get up before a class and explain each step clearly.

If it can't be done, it has not been studied hard enough.

Parents are paying for thorough work and want to see something for the investment.

Your City Servant

Mirrors of E. Liverpool Municipal Family

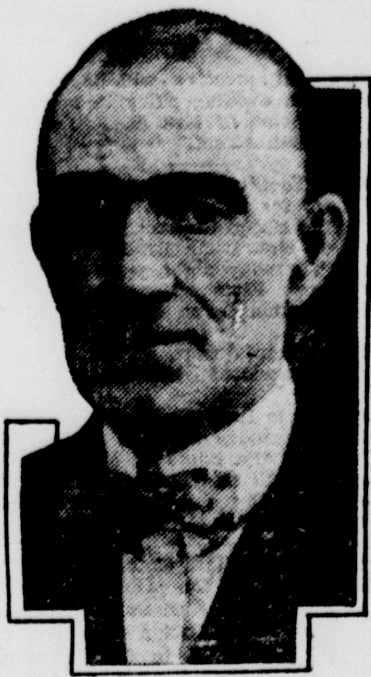

Councilman George A. Hughes

Born in New York on August 25, 1878, Councilman George A. Hughes, Fourth ward representative in the city's lawmaking body, has been a resident of East Liverpool since 1885, or 44 years.

Hughes followed the trade of a potter for 39 years and was last employed as a jiggerman at the Taylor, Smith & Taylor pottery in Chester, W. Va. He left the shop a few months ago to become tollkeeper on the Chester-East Liverpool bridge.

He is now serving his third term in council. He was elected in November, 1921, serving in 1922 and 1923. He retired for one term and was again elected, qualifying in 1926. He is a Republican in politics.

Hughes is a member of Carroll Council, No. 509, Knights of Columbus, and the St. Aloysius Catholic church. He is married and has seven children. He lives at 215 West Third street.

Pottery City Week By Week

With Apologies to O. O. McIntyre

The death of the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, eminent Brooklyn, N. Y., divine who succeeded to the pulpit of Plymouth church made famous initially by Henry Ward Beecher, serves to recall his wartime visit to East Liverpool following a trip to Europe.

Having a personal acquaintance with Prof. Mark C. Baker, who at the time was director of music at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Dr. Hillis was invited here to speak upon his findings in the war zone.

The event was given generous publicity throughout Columbiana county so that when he came here the high school auditorium was crowded.

His appearance here in part marked the tension of those exciting days in that it was feared that enemies of the distinguished speaker might attempt drastic departures to prevent the delivery of his address. Following his nearly two-hour discussion of the European situation he was taken out for lunch and then placed in an interurban car for Steubenville. As a bodyguard, James Stevenson, present bailiff of the common pleas court, Lisbon, accompanied him to the down-river city.

There's a thrill which even the daredevil motorist who shoots past you in a cloud of dust on a narrow road somewhere might appreciate—riding a barge down the middle of the Ohio river at flood stage. There's only one that can beat it. Several years ago a half-dozen men were stranded on a barge caught on a rock in the middle of the Niagara river, just above the American falls. They were all rescued.

Just below Vanport, Pa., there is a Pennsylvania state highway sign which, however, says nothing about highways. It points out simply, "The Ohio River." How many motorists, do you suppose, have had time enough to take their eyes off the road and feast their senses on the truly remarkable view at this point, caught, portrait-like, between stately trees and banks on either side. It is a striking painting by Mother Nature, a showing to best advantage in mid-summer.

Or another, which, doubtless, hundreds of East Liverpool persons have seen without comment where visitors would be dazzled—can be viewed at sundown on a clear day, from the peak of the Campground road, leading down into Kountz avenue. Just try to describe it.

Perhaps Frank G. Jones, president of a local gasoline company; T. E. Lewis, retired business man; H. B. Barth, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; Frank Swaney, former telephone company manager, and a few others, can produce a better one as a result of their trip over the city at an altitude of something like 1,400 feet, in the Goodyear baby blimp, Puritan, last summer.

One of the really momentous questions of this day among the very young men of the city is whether to wear that screaming red hat or the scorching, penetrating purple. Local haberdashers recently introduced a new type of kelly known as the "ouicer." But why they, the manufacturers, made red ones, green ones, purple ones, is questionable. Nevertheless, some one is selling them for they are being heard in various places in the city.

"Sweet mercy is nobility's bridge." The Bard of Avon had a way, all right, but, nevertheless, there is a restaurant operator here who never refuses a plea for food from a down and outer.

It is the custom of another man in East Liverpool to drop a coin of decent denomination in the hat, or tin cup, of the maimed pencil seller who so frequently offer their wares on the street. He will go out of his way to do it.

And a woman in this city never fails at Christmas time, to go to a certain grocer whom she knows well, and gives him a sum of money and instructs him to seek out certain needy families and supply them with food. Undoubtedly there are others.

CLOSE CITADEL REVIVAL SUNDAY

"Holiness does not consist in knowledge, talents and the outward ceremonies of religion but is seated in the heart and is the effect of the principle of grace implanted by the Holy Ghost," declared Commandant William Hyde, of Cleveland at the West Third street citadel of the Salvation Army last night. His subject was "Clean-Cut Religion."

One conversion resulted in making a total of 58 so far in the present revival.

Commandant Hyde will speak again tonight and in the morning and evening of Sunday. The latter service being the concluding one of the series.

On Sunday evening Andrew Van Dey, one of the survivors of those inflicting the Salvation Army in East Liverpool, will speak.

Col. Meville Dies.

SANDUSKY, O., March 2.—Col. James E. Meville, 60, a Spanish-American war veteran who served as Sandusky's postmaster under President Roosevelt, died in his home here today. He had been confined to his home most of the time since last Memorial day when he fell from exhaustion while carrying the flag in the Memorial day parade.

PASTOR CALLS 12 APOSTLES GREAT POWERS

Rev. W. R. McKinney In United Brethren Pulpit.

FAITH IS URGED

Be Like Christ, is Appeal of Revivalist.

"The regeneration of the world involves and requires the regeneration of individuals which includes recognition in the latter of Christ in order to share in universal salvation," said the Rev. W. R. McKinney, pastor at the United Brethren revival last night. His subject was "Christ Calling the Twelve Disciples."

He said the individual chooses and deliberately acts because of the touch and contact of the living Christ available within. He asked: "Shall we not call the twelve apostles the twelve great powers of the mind? These have expression in more than the mental plane. The first five are expressed on three planes: the physical, mental and the spiritual; the remaining seven on but the mental and physical."

"Simon, physical, stands for the sense of hearing and on the plane of the mind and soul, here man functions it represents faith; in the spiritual, hearing (intuition). The calling of these twelve faculties of follow me signifies the awakening of the consciousness of Christ."

"Without hearing there would be no faith, and without the word there would be no word. Faith is the foundation of our hopes. Simon was called Petros (Rock). 'On it I will build my church.'"

Explains Meaning of Disciples

"Andrew mainly refers to the sense of sight. After accepting Christ he called his brother Simon. Andrew perceived and accepted Christ which led to faith. The Christ within touches the faculties in this order and the whole mind receives a new awakening. 'James refers to the sense of smell, physically, and John to the sense of taste. On the higher planes they have a kindred correspondence, that of nutrition, one testing and the other appropriating it. Touched by the Christ these faculties have a higher awakening."

"Philip stands for the sense of touch, the spiritual touch by which we are in unity with God-at-onement. 'Bartholomew (that suspends the waters) or Nathanael (the gift of God) means that intuition is a spiritual faculty and dependable with no guile."

"Thomas (The Twin), mentally, is intellect whose function is reason. Spiritually it speaks divine wisdom. Convinced of doubt, he cries: 'My Lord and my God.'"

"Levi or Matthew stands for faculty of mental acquisitiveness where it gains material and intellectual wealth."

"James or Alphaeus stands for the sense of justice as the high standard of Christ. The Christ within gave character to both external and internal life."

"Judas, Thaddeus, Judas (Jude) stands for courage which springs from conscious rectitude."

"Simon Zelotes stands for zeal, enthusiasm and eloquence. It contains a passion on the higher level as the Pentecostal outpouring."

"Judas was the one of that company whose office was to attend to the business side of Christ's work with men. There is a financial department to every spiritual movement. He was as worthy as any of the other disciples until Satan entered into him."

"But with the eleven disciples standing true to the triumph of the Christ is certain. Judas destroyed himself. Have we lost a faculty? No. Only the perversion falls dead. In the resurrection consciousness your business faculty is the gift of God. This is Matthias (gift of God) now numbered with the twelve who takes the place of Judas. The resurrection follows. Ye are risen with Christ."

"Are these spiritual powers received of Christ? If so hand them over to His service."

Put On New Man, He Suggests

"On Thursday night Rev. Mr. McKinney spoke on the subject 'Put on the New Man,' which he said consisted in putting off the 'old man,' that is the former way of life in sin. 'To put on the Lord Jesus Christ is to make our His character. With

TWO MEN HELD IN MASSACRE

CHICAGO, March 2.—"Machine Gun" Jack McGurn and Rocco Fanelli, alleged henchmen of "Scarface Al" Capone, were held to the grand jury without bail when arraigned here today before Judge Peter Schwaba. They were charged with the massacre of seven men in a North Side garage.

Louise Rolfe, sweetheart and blonde "alibi" of McGurn, arrested with him at a downtown hotel, was granted the right of bail. Her bond was $4,000 on an adultery and disorderly conduct charge.

The case was continued until March 16, in spite of vehement objections of defense counsel who claimed the state had no evidence that Fanelli and McGurn had engineered the massacre.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, March 2.—Wall Street's "inauguration market" ran in to heavy profit-taking and speculative selling in the short session of the market today and reactions were again in order in a number of the market leaders.

The copper stock were pushed on the market in good volume in the first hour. At 147 1/2, Anaconda was down about 4 points for the period and 8 points from Friday's peak. Shrinkages of from 1 to 3 points were also recorded in Andes Copper, Kennecott and other high flyers in yesterday's 6,000,000-share session. United States Steel sold below 189. A decline of 5 points from Friday's final period.

Most of the motor car stocks started the day at higher price levels, in response to the highly colorful statements of a number of the well known American manufacturers, who have estimated foreign sales at a large increase for 1929. The currents of speculative selling were too strong for the bulls, however, and prices of the motor stocks were also bent backward a point or so below the level of Friday's close. Stock sales in the first hour were about half as many as in yesterday's boiling session.

Christ there must be the cultivation of personal likeness to Christ and personal fellowship in His mighty enterprise.

"We are to put on Christ by entering into such close relationships with Him that unconsciously we reproduce His traits of character, meditate upon His life as revealed in His word and imitate His example in going about doing good."

"The more we are like Christ the more we will be hated by His enemies. To be like Christ will cause us to be God centered, not self-centered. To be like Him we will develop a religion rooted and grounded in brotherly love. 'Who hateth his brother knows not God.'"

AUTO CRASHES AGAINST WALL

Emil Roe, Niles, Cut On Face in Wreck Here.

Emil Roe, Niles, was cut on the face when a coupe in which he was a passenger with Alfred Gamble, also of Niles, crashed against a stone wall under the porch of the Edmund Carr home, 315 West Ninth street, at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Gamble was unhurt.

Gamble told Patrolman Herman Roth, who investigated, that he had fallen asleep at the wheel of the car. A sedan, driven by Lawrence Freyett, Chestnut street, and an automobile in charge of Charles Vaughn, Church alley, collided near Brady's cut, Wellsville-East Liverpool road, at 11:39 o'clock last night. The crash occurred as Freyett, headed west, pulled to the left side of the road to pass a rock which had dropped to the highway.

Two other cars, whose owners were not identified, figured in another crash at the same point a little later but little damage was done to either machine. No one was injured.

LITA CHAPLIN GOES TO COAST

MOTHER AND SON IN "AIR CIRCUS"

David Rollins and Louise Dresser in 'The Air Circus'

At Ceramic Theatre Next Week.

The theme of the story concerns two young men who leave their home in the country town to take up flying on the Pacific coast. One, David Rollins, whose brother gave his life overseas to save the owner of the aviation school, where the boys go to study, from death by an enemy plane, logically should develop into a competent flyer for his interest centers in flying. However, he develops into a dud, so to speak, showing an ever growing fear of the air. The other lad, a daredevil, whose interest centers in sky travel rather than learning the mechanics of flying on the ground work, flies rings around Rollins, though they both have the same teacher.

ENTER, CURTIS; EXIT, DAWES IN V. P. ROLE

Soft-spoken Senator Will Succeed Militant Figure.

BOTH POPULAR

Strike Common Chord In Ability to Win Friendships.

BY WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Enter, Charles Curtis; exit, Charles G. Dawes.

An easy-going, soft-spoken senator prepared today to step into the vice presidential chair of the senate which a militant, outspoken general of the army vacates Monday.

Differing in a thousand ways, the two men strike a common chord in their ability to win lasting friendship. If any man in the senate has more friends than Curtis, it may be Dawes; if any vice president can win more friends than Dawes, it may be Curtis.

On the subject of senate rules, however, they differ sharply. Dawes began his vice presidency with a tempestuous, ironical attack upon senatorial traditions and demand for revision of senate rules. Curtis will enter his vice presidency, talking about the weather or the niceties of the occasion. He won't even mention rules.

Dawes believes that initial speech of his was right and proper; Curtis still believes Dawes was something else again.

how "consistency is the vice of all minds."

COL. COOPER, chief consulting engineer of the Russian super-power project on the Dnieper river, says Russian government must fall, because it is run only for two classes, peasants and workers.

It is run also for the commanding brain at the top. And in that Sovietism follows many successful autocratic governments.

AUTOCRACY possessed of intelligence, not depending on birth and a small privileged class, but on brains and the great masses of the nation, might last a long time.

A government made up of intelligence, workers and peasants duplicates the human body with its brains, hands and feet.

YOU have heard from Mr. Frederick Ecker, vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, that workers in the United States earn sixty million dollars a year, wages and salaries.

NOW you learn from the department of commerce that the value of United States manufactured products in 1927 was over two hundred billion dollars, an increase of nearly twenty billions in six years. We possess a prosperous country, and, as that learned, concentrated financier, James Speyer, remarks, "We have nothing to fear but our own foolishness."

UNHAPPY is China, harassed by revolution, tortured by famine stricken with smallpox, and, in the western province of Kansu, preyed upon by 20,000 fanatical Mohammedans, murdering unarmed Chinese natives. It is estimated since 1926 these Mohammedan fanatics, killing like wolves, in a band of sheep, have murdered 200,000 Chinese.

Our New First Lady

Mrs. Hoover As a Girl Learned Banking Business As Aid To Father in Little California Town.

(This is the sixth and last in a series descriptive of the girlhood life of Lou Henry, now Mrs. Herbert C. Hoover, as told to the International News Service by men and women who were her playmates in the little Quaker town of Whittier, Cal., more than 40 years ago.)

WHITTIER, Cal.—Perhaps he did not realize it when he married her, perhaps he has never had the fact consciously called to his attention since, but Herbert C. Hoover, who will become president of the United States on March 4, is the husband of a former feminine banker.

This little fact was disclosed in a page of memoirs of the girlhood of Mrs. Lou Henry Hoover by Gen. Madison T. Owens, member of the little colony of Quaker men and women that founded this city.

"Banking in Whittier in 1888 was a one-man business," Gen. Owens recalled. "Charles Henry, Lou Henry's father, was the one man and the one bank. He served therein as cashier, bookkeeper, teller and general financial consultant."

Town Makes Strides. "But the little town grew amazingly. The mustard weed was cleared away, crops began to be worth something, and the prices of lots boomed skyward. Mr. Henry couldn't handle all his banking business, and his daughter Lou stepped right into the breach. In a short time she could perform the four-fold banking duties as capably as her father, save, perhaps, that she might not be able to mete out the same sound financial advice."

"Lou Henry used to go to the bank after school, usually carrying a bag of peppermint lozenges she had bought at Starbuck's drugstore. The bank was known by the firm name of Tillinghast, Henry and Company. I never saw Tillinghast but as I remember, he was an Iowa who put up much of the capital to launch the enterprise. Who the 'Company' was I never knew. The firm's old safe, in which we early residents kept our money and valuable papers, is now in the storeroom of the First National Bank, built on the site of the original Henry bank. The safe still bears on its door the old firm's name."

Gen. Owens then described how the mistress-to-be of the White House as a little girl helped her father total the day's banking business and cast the balances of the Quaker town's only financial institution.

Was Good Student. "Lou was a good student in every school subject," he pointed out, "but especially proficient in mathematics, which doubtless accounted for the aptitude she displayed in the bank. She also was keenly interested in geology, and when the bank was closed she and her father used to take long walks in the Puente hills shooting rabbits and collecting specimens for the girls' geology collection."

"I recall also how Lou Henry despite all her school interests and her work at the bank, found time to found a reading club of 14 girls who met once a week at her home."

"The Henry's left Whittier in 1891. I think, soon after Lou was graduated from the Bailey street school, and went to Monterey where Mr. Henry continued in the banking business. Lou went to the State teachers' college at San Jose and later to Stanford university, where Herbert C. Hoover was both a worker and a student."

PENNSY PAYS PENSION BOOST

Railroad Distributes $6,083,540 During 1928.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company paid pensions amounting to $6,083,540 in 1928, an increase of $127,759 over the previous year, according to the annual report issued today.

During the year 1,129 employees were retired under the pension provisions and 869 retired employees died. The total number on the pension rolls at the close of the year was 9,959, a net increase of 261. The average age of all pensioners on December 31, 1928, was 72 years and 10 months.

Among the retired employees there are 57 men who were in active service for 55 or more years prior to their retirement. In this group the record for the longest term of active service is held by Simon Clary, who was a maintenance of way inspector in the office of the general superintendent of the Eastern Ohio division at the time of his retirement. On June 1, 1925, Clary had been in active service for 61 years.

Under the regulations of the pension department which was established in 1900, retirement is compulsory for all officers and employees upon reaching the age of 70. Employees between 65 and 70 may be retired if incapacitated from the proper performance of duty.

During the 28 years of the department's existence the total pension payments have exceeded $58,000,000, exclusive of the departments operating expenses which the company also bears. A total of 21,936 employees have been retired in this period and transferred to the company's "roll of honor," as the pension list has been called for many years.

COUNT BALLOTS

No Special Rules Except To Tabulate, Haskin Says.

There are no special rules in the nationwide poll to discover America's Favorite Poem, and readers of The East Liverpool Review who have made numerous inquiries as to whether this or that verse may be considered in the vote have the assurance of Frederic J. Haskin, national director of the poll, that any work which they consider a poem, and which they vote for, will be counted.

Salineville Personals. Mrs. Nora Callett has concluded a visit in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mabel Smith, Wellsville.

In response to a variety of inquiries, Mr. Haskin has forwarded from Washington the following statement: "Please assure your readers that in canvassing the votes for America's Favorite Poem there is no intention to set up a censorship as to what is or what is not poetry. That is for the judgment of the public which takes part in the poll. This poll has no rules except to tabulate and count all of the bona fide votes received at my office prior to the closing hour of the poll, to announce the results through the newspapers taking part, and publish the winning poems."

Count Votes For Song. "I have been asked in the last few days whether the words of a song may be voted for. The answer is that if the words of a song, apart from any music, are poetry in the judgment of voters in the poll, they may certainly vote for those words as their favorite poem, and the vote will be counted. I have been asked whether comic poems will be counted. The answer is yes. No doubt humorous verse is the favorite of many people. I am asked whether only the work of American poets will be counted. No indeed, there is no limitation as to authorship. I am asked whether long poems will count, such as 'The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam,' or 'Paradise Lost,' or Dante's 'Inferno,' or his entire 'Divine Comedy.' The answer is yes, they will be counted. The same answer applies to the question whether blank verse will be counted."

"The whole idea of this vote is that it is arranged to register the choice of the American public as to poetry. In acting as Director of the poll, I am not setting myself up as a judge of poetry, but merely offering my office and the facilities of my information bureau and of the libraries here in Washington, for assembling the votes, tabulating them and providing information about poems and their authors and where they are printed. The judgment as to what is best or most desirable in poetry rests with the newspaper readers who take part in the poll."

Definition of Word Poetry. Webster's definition of the word "poetry" may interest those taking part in the contest. It is—"The art or work of poets; the imagination, or emotion, the language being rhythmic, usually metrical, and characterized by harmonic and emotional qualities which appeal to and arouse the feelings and imagination; metrical composition; also the production or productions of a poet or poets; poetical writings; poems collectively; rime; verse."

A coupon for voting in the nationwide poll is printed in today's issue.

STARS IN AIR PICTURE

David Rollins and Sue Carol in 'The Air Circus' Coming to Ceramic Theatre Monday.

Sue Carol does admirable work as the sister of the aviation school teacher, played by Charles Delaney. She is an air instructor and it falls to her lot to teach Rollins and his pal, Arthur Lake, how to fly a plane. Young Lake takes to flying like a duck to water, but Rollins, who theoretically, should excel Lake because Rollins' brother scored success as an overseas ace, develops fear in the air, which is accentuated when Rollins cracks up in two attempts to handle a plane in the air. Delaney, the owner of the school, and his sister who helps him, both are anxious that Rollins give a creditable performance as a flyer, but their hopes seem destined to go unrealized.

MISSION CHIEF WILL PREACH HERE SUNDAY

TWO SERMONS

Home on Furlough After 22 Years in China.

The Rev. P. R. Bakeman, who has been engaged in missionary work in China for 22 years and who is now on a furlough in the United States, will occupy the pulpit of the First Baptist church at morning and evening services tomorrow.

The Rev. Mr. Bakeman was born in Auburn, Maine, in February, 1882. During his boyhood his parents moved to Chelsea, Mass. He was graduated from the Chelsea High school at the age of 17 and at once entered Brown university. It was during his junior year in college that he decided to become a missionary. He entered Newton Theological institution and completed his course there in 1906, just three years after his graduation from Brown university.

On January 8, 1906, he received his appointment as a missionary of the American Baptist Foreign Mission society, and was later designated to Hangchow, East China. In June of that year he was married to Miss Caroline A. Read of Port Egin, New Brunswick. They sailed from San Francisco on Oct. 12. In 1919 the Rev. and Mrs. Bakeman were designated to Shanghai where the Rev. Mr. Bakeman was to teach in the Shanghai Theological seminary. Later he was appointed the evangelist representative for the East China mission, a task which involved much traveling and conference work.

In October, 1926, he was re-designated to Hangchow to carry on the evangelistic work there.

Dempsey's 100 Grand Saves Day

Real Story of Miracle Of Miami Is Revealed.

By Davis J. Walsh.
NEW YORK, March 2.—Now that it is all over but the terrible shouting, which seems to have been done somewhat innocently, and the miracle of Miami's $405,000 harvest has been enacted, the real story behind the Sharkey-Stribling necking party on the beach may be told today without the embarrassment it otherwise might have occasioned. It isn't a story of how Sharkey won because he was absolutely determined to "merge" triumphant or why so many dollars lost all self-control at the sight of a box office window; it is the story of why the fight ever was held at all.

It was held because John Dempsey didn't have a shred of paper to show for the $100,000 he had advanced as his part of the "nut" for the late Tex Rickard's enterprises at Miami Beach. Rickard and Dempsey were like that. They never needed even a handshake to confirm any bargain they made, which was very laudable. They needed none this last time, which might have been unfortunate. For Rickard died almost overnight and Dempsey suddenly discovered that he owned neither the $100,000 nor legal proof that he ever had owned it. Rickard's death might have nullified the plans that had been made but that would have got Dempsey nowhere in nothing flat, establishing a new track record.

Dempsey Gets Credit.
He couldn't withdraw something he didn't have. He, therefore, had to go forward.

The Sharkey-Stribling party is history now and the credit for its amazing total of gross receipts largely is attributed to Dempsey. It should be. It isn't likely that there ever would have been a fight at all, if Dempsey hadn't involved himself beyond recall in its promotion. The death of Rickard alone might have been sufficient excuse to call off negotiations that hadn't been concluded. There were no formal contracts made or at least no evidence has been turned up to that effect in the meantime. The fight itself didn't look the part of a money maker and Sharkey's $100,000 guarantee seemed all out of focus with the picture as a whole, unless the master brush of Rickard was there to paint it.

It was with these considerations in mind that the Garden corporation dallied for some days with the idea that the entire matter might well be allowed to go by default. It knew that Rickard suspected he might have to take a loss on the fight but that he meant to promote it in order to bring the crowds into town so that the other Rickard-Dempsey investments might prosper.

Garden Ready to Quit.
Therefore, knowing this, the Garden outfit set no abiding reason why it should obligate itself because of these outside investments, particularly after Sharkey had reiterated his demand for $100,000 on the Saturday following Rickard's death.

It had sent Dempsey and Carey to Boston with $75,000 as its top figure. It meant to go no higher. Two things persuaded it to do so. First, Dempsey and Carey offered to write off the extra $25,000 personally and it felt that, if they were prepared to go that far, it could do no less. Second, it feared the effect a cancellation of the fight might have on the Garden holdings. That it would look as though the Garden couldn't go on without Rickard.

But there was another influence behind both of these influences and that was Dempsey himself. He sold Carey on the proposition, leaving nothing to be done but for Carey to sell Richard Hoyt, the unseen power behind the throne at the Garden. There would have been no fight if Hoyt had said "no" over the long distance telephone. But he didn't and there was.

FORMER NEW YORK CELTIC STAR WILL PLAY HERE WITH "ROSIES"

Joe Lapchick

Joe Lapchick, former center of the New York Celtics, will be among the stars seen here next Wednesday night when the Cleveland Rosenblums swing into action against the East Liverpool Independents on the Public Auditorium floor.

Lapchick, who stands 6 feet 5 inches and weighs 198 pounds, joined the Celtics in 1923, replacing "Hoss" Haggerty at center, and immediately developed into a star. He remained with the Celtics until the team disbanded at the start of this season, when he cast his lot with the Rosenblums. He is now playing the brand of basketball that helped the New Yorkers to many of their victories.

Lapchick, with Barry and Doherty, played on the Celtic team when it was developing, under Nat Holman, the smart plays which so frequently fooled the opposition and meant victories. The three former Celtic players are now working these plays successfully for the Cleveland squad.

Rochester Setting Pace In Pro Basketball Race

Cleveland's Rosenblums, Winners of First Half Season Championship, Lose Chance For Second Half Title.

CLEVELAND, Mar. 2.—Though close pressed by Ft. Wayne, Rochester remained at the head of the American Professional Basketball league this week. The Hoosiers trimmed Trenton, 38 to 27, last night, and are favored to overtake the easterners within a short time.

Cleveland's Rosenblums, winners of the first half season championship, lost a game at Chicago during the week and their chances of taking the second title have practically faded.

Cage Play Starts At Delaware

Mount Vernon's Win Over Lancaster is Tourney Feature.

DELAWARE, O., March 2.—Columbus East, Marion Harding, Mount Vernon, and Delaware High schools today are survivors of the Central Ohio class A basketball tournament being held here at Ohio Wesleyan university.

Two Columbus schools fought it out first, with East High topping West, 28 to 20. Mount Vernon's win over Lancaster was the feature of last night's card. Lancaster took the lead early but Mount slowly crept up, until at the half, only one point was lacking on Mount's side to make it a tie. The two teams were deadlocked at the end of the third quarter, 18-all. A rally in the last few minutes of play, put Mt. Vernon ahead with a one-point victory, 22 to 21.

Delaware's win over Westerville was to be expected, but the unusual low score was a surprise, Delaware won, 14 to 9.

In the last game of the evening, Marion Harding downed Columbus Bexley, after a close, hard-fought game, 19 to 16. The half ended, 10 to 6 with Harding on top, but the Columbus boys staged a comeback, and made it 12 to 12 at the third period. Woodward's loss on fouls crippled Bexley, however, and Marion took the game.

Play will be resumed this afternoon in class A, with the following pairings: Columbus Central vs. Delaware; Mt. Vernon vs. Newark; Columbus East; Marion Harding vs. Columbus Aquinas.

In class B circles, London, Salt Creek, Watkins, Monroe, Hyatts, Plain City, Grandview, Marion St. Marys, Millersport, Upper Arlington, Cardington, Marysville, Pickerington, Kirksville, and Grabville survived the first round.

Interest in yesterday's games was centered on Marysville, last year's district champs, who played Lancaster St. Marys. Marysville survived by virtue of a one point victory, 17 to 16.

Games in class B today are as follows: London vs. Watkins; Monroe vs. Hyatts; Plain City vs. Grandview; Marion St. Marys vs. Millersport; Upper Arlington vs. Cardington; Marys-

Four-Fight Bill to Be Presented

Carpentier-Miller Battle is Semi-final.

"Mickey" Solomon, of New Castle, and "Buck" McTierman, of Swissvale, Pa., head the card which will be offered to East Liverpool district boxing fans Monday night in the Eagle's club, Broadway. The boys, weighing in at 151 pounds, are scheduled to go eight rounds.

Solomon, who made a big hit at the last show staged by the club, is anxious to even the score with McTierman who beat him recently in McKeesport, Pa. Both boys will be in the pink of condition when the bell sends them into action.

Another high class bout, according to Matchmaker Homer Wyand, will be between U. S. Carpentier of Pittsburgh, who is managed by "Red" Mason, dean of the Smoky City ring pilots, and Alvie Miller of Youngstown. The latter has been coming fast and expects to give the Pittsburgher one of the hardest fights of his career. They will come in under 132 pounds.

Mike Von Grey, Pittsburgh, and A. Brown, Warren, O., who will meet at 145 pounds, and Ray Mitchell, East Liverpool, and A. Kelly, Lisbon, who will open the card with a four-round affair, are others on the program.

The bouts will start promptly at 8:30. Al Watson of Beaver Falls, Pa., will be third man in the ring.

At Boston: Jimmy Maloney, Boston lightweight, won decision over Tom Heeney, of New Zealand (10).

VANGUARD

A Highly Amusing Story of a Romance
Aboard a Millionaire's Yacht.

By Arnold Bennett

The launch subbed itself to the pace of a fast-trotting horse. Bridges, trams, domes, an island, trees, tenement houses, palaces, churches, palaces, fishermen. "Hold on!" cried the baron. "Here. This must be it. That's the Cavour Bridge ahead, isn't it, Sutherland?" "I don't know," said Sutherland. "Well it is, because it must be." In a moment one of the crew was ashore with a mooring rope in his hand, and in another half-minute the man was the center of a crowd. "Dump that baggage here," ordered the Baron, springing ashore himself, and he called into the crowd, as a spot of light shot into the brown, the magic word, the word which in all the languages of the world is the same: "Taxi."

Then toward the launch:
"You can go back to the yacht now."
The launch cast off, buzzed loudly, made a sharp curve into midstream, and slipped at full speed down the current. It had vanished under the Umberto Bridge before the deliberate Septimius Sutherland had fully realized what was happening to him. Septimius, as is the fate of a rich man whose duty it is to satisfy the curiosity and demand for novelty of three idle ladies, had several times entered Rome, but never in this manner.

The Paradiso.
"You haven't told them where we're staying," he said.
"And why should I? It's none of their business. Where shall we stay?"
"Oh!" said Septimius, "I suppose there's only the Paradiso."
"I suppose so," Lord Furber agreed.
Thus in a word did the plutocrats eradicate and destroy a hundred hotels in Rome, leaving but one intact on its foundations.
By this time, four Roman citizens, by their united efforts, were carrying, unbidden, two light suitcases, and a fifth was urging the visitors to follow the suitcases. A taxicab appeared.
"Paradiso!" cried Lord Furber to the driver, and paid out five lire notes, according to demand.
"Can't you call to see your agent on the way?" asked Septimius.
"Why should I?" the Baron retorted. "What do you want an agent for?"
"I thought he might save you some trouble."
"I'll save all the trouble myself," said the Baron.
At the majestic Paradiso, the tourists were informed that the hotel was practically full.
"I'm Lord Furber," said Lord Furber. "I've just come here from my yacht at Ostia."

"In that case, my Lord..."
Within a minute and a half the management of the full Paradiso had manufactured a perfectly unoccupied suite consisting of a sitting room, two bedrooms and two bathrooms and placed it at the disposal of the British aristocracy.
"How much?" the Baron inquired, after inspection of the accommodation.
"Twelve hundred lire, my Lord."
"A day?"
"Yes, my Lord."
"Grand!" said His Lordship.
"Say," he questioned the head waiter in the restaurant of the Paradiso during dinner. "Is there any moon tonight worth talking about?"
The omission of the head waiter received a shock, for the man had not seen the moon for several years. Also the idiomatic quality of His Lordship's question was rather puzzling to him. The head waiter had spent the evenings and nights of a quarter of a century past either in the Paradiso or in hotels exactly like the Paradiso, and his private opinion was doubtless that no moon was worth talking about.
"—I will inquire, my Lord."
"Yes, do," Septimius cut in. "Ask in the office. They're bound to have the latest information there!"
The head waiter did not ask at the office, his situation being too exalted for such an act; but he sent some body else to inquire at the office, and in the meantime he favored with his presence and knowledge other tables in the crowded room. He had a great and succulent piece of information for the other tables; namely, that Lord Furber, the famous English millionaire, was staying in the Paradiso. Before he had finished his round, the entire restaurant had been made aware that Lord Furber was patronizing the Paradiso, and of the precise geographical position of His Lordship's table. The identity of Septimius Sutherland evoked little curiosity; for the Paradiso public the first and last pertinent point about Septimius was that he was the one who was not Lord Furber.

"The moon was full two days since," said the head waiter, hastening back to His Lordship's table and bearing, as it were, the precious information on a silver dish with both hands.
"Ah! And is it a clear night?"
"Quite clear," said the waiter, on the chance that he might be accurately representing the heavens hidden from mortal eye by the splendid window curtains of the Paradiso dining room. (Chance favored him; the night was in fact quite clear.)
"Anything to do in Rome this evening?" Lord Furber demanded. The head waiter bristled at a question so nearly bordering on an insult to Rome, his Rome. He catalogued the opera, eight other theatres, and some sixteen cinemas, besides a music hall and a nocturnal ceremonial in one of the churches.
"Septimius," said the Baron, "it seems to me that the Coliseum by moonlight is the stuff for tonight. I'm an innocent abroad in Rome, but I'll lay my shirt the two greatest things here are the Coliseum and St. Peter's. What do you say? Coliseum by moonlight?"
"I say it," was the calm reply.

The pair were becoming more and more intimate. They were positively enjoying one another's society. As for Septimius, he now understood why his willful friend, in the automobile of which they had at once hired the exclusive services, had during the afternoon steadily resisted the chauffeur's keen and natural desire to display to them the Coliseum and St. Peter's. His friend had been saving these choice morsels for the future.
"Good organization, that!" thought Septimius approvingly.

They immediately departed from the Paradiso, that supreme illustration of modernness, and in ten minutes they stood facing the supreme illustration of the wicked ancient world; and one of the desires of the chauffeur had been appeased.

Lord Furber, standing close to the facade of the Coliseum, gazed upward at its tremendous height, story upon story rising into the illuminated skies.

"Yes!" he murmured to himself. "Yes!"
The two grandees were like flies at the foot of a precipice. The automobile, near by, was like the microscopic carriages to which in old days seaside entertainers used to harness performing fleas.

Lord Furber examined minutely the fitting of the vast blocks of travertine of which the exterior was constructed.

"That's true enough," said he. "They did put it up too quick. Jerry built! Jerry built! No mistake! But it's lasted."

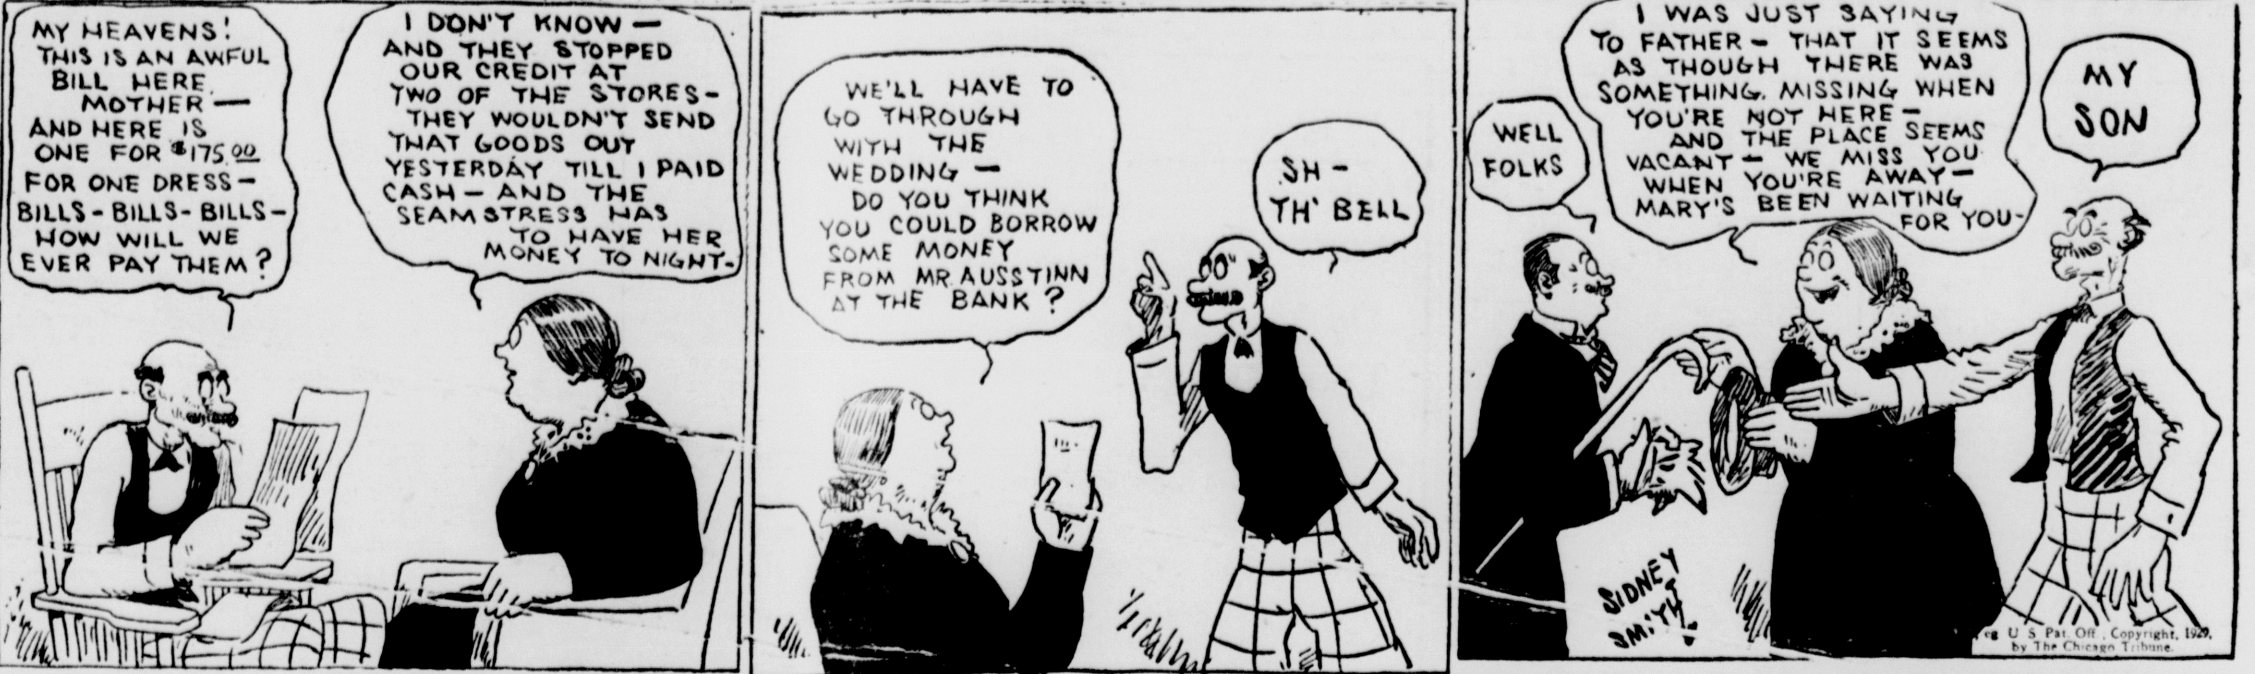

Then he hurried across the darkness of the immense ground floor arcade into the interior. The moon, though it had not yet topped the curve of the vast wall, was shining brilliantly according to prediction through multi-tudinous arches, displaying the grass-grown arena with its mysterious pits and subterranean chambers, the gigantic granite stairways climbing here and there and ending in nothing, and the jagged fangs of the stone summits. In the distances tiny human figures could be described darkly moving. Desolation, majestic and unconquerable!

"Yes," said Lord Furber, not to any one in particular. "The Wembley Stadium's bigger, but this place has Wembley beat. This is the sort of thing I can understand." There was awe in his deep, rich voice. "How many gladiators were killed here in the first three months after it was opened, Sep? Dye remember? I know five thousand lions and tigers were done in, but I can't remember the number of men. Fancy them having an inauguration that went on every day for three months!"

Septimius said he didn't know. With a hurrah the Baron off like a rabbit and up a moss-grown stairway. He was stopped by a barrier and had to return, stumbling. "You'd better be careful," Septimius warned him. "You'll be breaking your leg before you know where you are."

CAPITOL LEVY BILL PASSED

Senators Wells and Hu-gus Vote Against Proposal.

A five-cent tax on each $100 property valuation to raise $5,000,000 for completion of the main unit of the capitol building was authorized yesterday by the legislature at Charleston, when the senate by a vote of 19 to 11, passed the house bill directing the board of public works to lay the levy. The bill now goes to the governor.

As originally passed by the senate,
the bill contained an amendment making it a misdemeanor for the governor and members of the Capitol commission to expend more than $5,000,000 for the main unit and making them liable for a $5,000 fine or a year in jail, or both. This section was stricken out and an amendment was inserted making null and void any contract might make in excess of $5,000,000.

Senator W. Edwin Wells, Jr., of Newell, and Senator Wright Hugus, of Wheeling, from the first district,
voted against the bill.
